

Diane Whitehouse – Bio

Diane Whitehouse works actively in the research, policy, and deployment fields of eHealth with a variety of groups and associations. Since 2008, she has concentrated in EHTEL on areas including policy development, stakeholder engagement, telehealth and - occasionally - interoperability. Until February 2007, Diane was a Scientific Officer in the 'ICT for Health' Unit of the European Commission's General Directorate Information Society and Media (now called Connect). Diane is a social scientist whose work focuses on the social, organisational, and ethical aspects of ICT: her several books in this field are well-known. The latest is the 2014 co-edited volume "Managing eHealth: From Vision to Reality": <http://www.palgrave.com/page/detail/?K=9781137379429>.